CAPABILITY STATEMENT

Quantum Digital

It is a fact that 90% of the information transmitted to the brain is visual, and our brain processes visual images 60,000 times faster than text. As the saying goes, 'a picture tells a thousand words'. To leverage this fact, Quantum has developed an in-house media team specifically dedicated to the preparation of multi-media movies and interactive presentations used to demonstrate construction claim entitlements. When utilised in this way, media is particularly useful for making presentations to Employers' senior management – the key decision makers who do not necessarily have the time to read and digest the large volumes of narrative accompanying many claim submissions.

Media can be used to present issues clearly, concisely and with a focused message aligned to the desired outcomes. Quantum has used media extensively on complex disputes and this has proven to be very effective in securing decisions with positive results.

Quantum is proactive in partnering and supporting clients on projects with the provision of contract, commercial and planning management support. We want to help resolve issues before they escalate and help our clients avoid expensive protracted dispute processes. We strongly promote regular health checks on projects and believe there is great value in provision of a 'third party objective review' on issues. Embedded contractual support is also becoming increasingly popular with our clients, with Quantum employees working as an integrated part of the project team, seconded either on a full time or part time basis.
